

Nancy Sullivan Ltd.
Consultants in anthropology for development
in Papua New Guinea
PO Box 404 Madang 511
Ph/Fax 675 852 3800
nsullivan@global.net.pg
nsullivan03@yahoo.com
www.nancysullivan.org

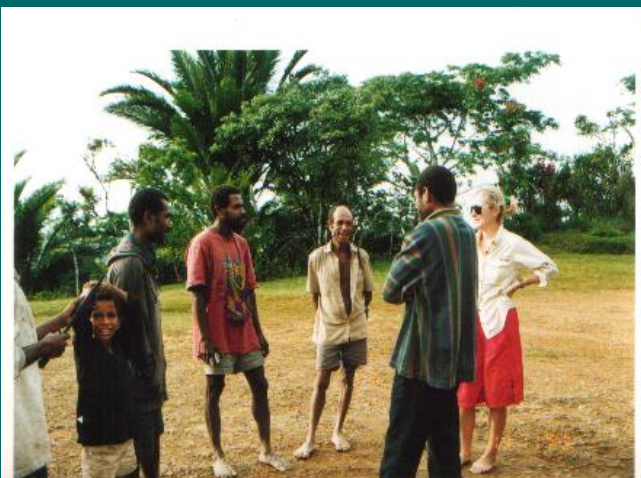

We are a consulting company specializing in ethnographic research and reportage. This is the most important component of any conservation or development project in Papua New Guinea, and we have the tools to get the data. Our researchers collect the social, cultural, economic and political information that is essential to the success of any project, large or small. We are the professionals.

Participatory Rural Appraisals: Pioneered by NGO's,
 agriculture
 research organizations
 and the World Bank, they are intended for all phases of a project cycle

Applied anthropology for the effectiveness and sustainability of your project

Methods include semi-structured interviews , participatory mapping, transect walks, Venn diagrams, historical profiles

Nowhere is the need for good quality information greater than in development projects. When projects base their actions on insufficient or faulty information, the result is (at best) a misplaced intervention that little corresponds to the needs of the population, that is therefore probably ignored, and that wastes the resources of the donor and the donor's donors. At worst, such projects may actually have a negative effect on populations as they undermine traditional practices or cause local communities to invest their scarce resources on unviable activities.

We are an anthropologist (PhD New York University, BA Princeton University) and trained ethnographers and students from the Department of PNG Studies at Divine Word University, Madang

Prices for PRAs and RRAs vary by job, and by participant researcher numbers. Call us, we're affordable. We furthermore promise a publishable quality report with literature reviews, analysis, appendices, recommendations and real applications. Contact us for examples and a quote.

